may vote, but the poor one shan't. Although restriction does not commend itself to my judgment I say that the sovereign power of New York is right to prescribe that form of the elective franchise chose to do so. On the other hand, Kentucky, Virginia, and other States, have provided that no, or a certain class of them in those States, shall have, having neither social nor political rights.
But endorsing the propriety of that decision, I say that Virginia has the same power, in virtue of her right, to tolerate slavery within her limits, ness had to banish it forever from the borders of the right of each State to decide for itself on the questions, and I do not subscribe to the doctrines of friend Lincoln that uniformity is either desirable or feasible. I do not acknowledge that they must all be that they must all be slaves. I do not acknowledge that the negro must be our equal everywhere or here. I do not acknowledge that the Chinese must have the same rights in California that we would confer on them here. I do not acknowledge that the coolies who come into this country must necessarily be put upon a parity with the white races. I do not acknowledge

These alterations or amendments to the form of government in the different States. You will see, my citizens, that the issue between Mr. Lincoln and me as the respective candidates for the United States is made up, is a direct, unequivocal, fair issue, for the uniformity of domestic institutions for the sections until one or the other shall yield. I go great principle of the Nebraska bill, for the right people of each State to decide for itself. On the point, Mr. Lincoln goes for warfare upon the Supreme Court of the United States because of their jurisdiction. I yield obedience to, and acquiesce in, the termination of the highest judicial tribunal of our own constitution. He objects to the Dred Scott decision, and I do not.

of the rights of citizenship on an equality with white man. I am utterly opposed to negro equality with white men. I repeat, that this nation consists of white people, a people composed of our descendants, a people that have established this government for themselves and their posterity and I am in favor of preserving not only the purity of their blood, but the purity of the government, against mixed races or amalgamations. We have seen the results of these mixed races of superior and inferior white men, and Indians, and negroes. We have seen it in Mexico, in Central America, in South America, and in all the Spanish-American colonies. The result has been deterioration and decay.

and degradation below the capacity for self-government. I am opposed to taking any step that recognizes the negro or Indian as the equal of the white man in the execution and administration of government. I would extend to the negro and Indian, and all dependent races, every privilege, and every immunity consistent with the safety of the white race, but equality of rights should have, either political or social, or in any very distinctly drawn. I stand by the same platform I have so often proclaimed to you and to the of Illinois heretofore. I stand by the democratic nation, yield obedience to its usages, and support its nominees. I endorse and approve the Cincinnati platform. I adhere to, and intend to carry out as that platform, the great principle of self-government which recognises the right of the people of each and Territory to decide for themselves upon their and institutions. In other words, if the Leocompton race again, you have only to turn back and there you have found me for the last six months, on rest assured you will find me in the same position, battling for the same principles, and vindicating my assault, from whatever quarter it may come, as I have the power.

You have the outline of the propositions which I discuss before the people of Illinois during the campaign. I have made up my mind to appeal people against the combination that has been made me—the republican leaders having formed an an unholy and unnatural alliance, with a por-of unscrupulous federal office-holders. I intend to any allied army wherever I meet them. I know my the alliance, but yet these men who are trying the democratic party for the purpose of electing senator in my place are just as much the and tools of the supporters of Mr. Lincoln. Hence deal with this allied army just as the Russians with the allies at Sebastopol—that is, the Russians, that stop to inquire, when they fired a broadside, if it hit an Englishman, a Frenchman, or a Turk. If I stop to inquire, nor shall I hesitate, whether we shall hit these republican leaders, or their allies holding the federal offices, and yet acting in concert with them. I do not include all government officers in this remark; such of them as are demagogues and show their democracy by remaining inactive in democratic organization and supporting its nominees.

nise as democrats. But those who, knowing they be voted down inside the democratic organization, decide and attempt to divide and destroy it, in contrast the republican leaders, have ceased to be democrats and hence belong to the allied army that is now against me and my principles.

deep to night. I will, however, have the opportunity of meeting you and addressing you face to face, more than one occasion before the November 1st is held. In conclusion, I must again say to you, that justice to my own feelings demands it at my hands, I should say my gratitude for the welcome you have extended on this occasion knows no bounds, and can be expressed by no language which I could command. I am literally at home among my constituents.

come which you have extended has amply repaid every effort that ever I have made in the public for the twenty-five years that I have held office hands. It not only compensates for the past, but furnishes an inducement and incentive for future which no human heart could feel which had not witnessed the magnificent reception you have extended to me last night on my return.

LETTER FROM THE HORSE-TAMER.

[From the Nashville Spirit of the South.]

LIVERPOOL, (Friday evening.)
April 23, 1858.

DEAR NEPHEW : I wrote you two sheets this morning was called away before I had quite finished, and have just got through with the day, and had my will hurry to finish your letter before any one

There is no rest for the wicked, and no accompaniment without great labor. I have just had a very day, and between the hurras, the rush of people, the breaking of these very bad horses, (one so as a shod,) the excitement, and the perfect volley of all sort of questions, I feel very much like leaning back in my chair and taking a quiet snooze. I tried to bring some horses to-day to defeat me, they couldn't come it, and I, as usual, came off victorious, and the loud cheers of a class of about one hundred

When you could be here just one day to see how enthusiastic the people are. This morning, when I stepped to the school and took off my hat, they set up such cheering and clapping of hands that made everything so animating me that I was full of eloquence, and I went back with as much enthusiasm as though I had just won a prize. The streets outside of the building were crowded; and when I rode out on the back of a truck, the people were so close that they were almost touching me.

the years, they, too, set up a loud hurrah for the name American, that they think I am. They don't know anybody but your Uncle Jack, that used to horses in the little town of Groveport. I, the name American sounds well, and I think I am justifiable in being proud of the name, if I am myself. I wouldn't like to be called the great man or the great Englishman. Nothing carries so much music as the name of American, &c.

There are about one hundred artesian wells in Iroquois, Illinois. Their average depth is about one hundred and twenty-five feet, and their cost about two hundred dollars.
